Seminar topic:

Digital Safety and Security: Do we need a paradigm shift?

Vulnerability discovery, disclosure, and exploitation are accelerating at an exponential rate. The associated institutional costs are becoming so overwhelming that headline costs in the $Millions are now trivial... nonetheless, the real on-the-ground human costs are immense and, at times, could be life-changing.

Gabriel is proposing a paradigm shift that may begin to change technology-driven/related service delivery architectures and promote safe and secure technology ecosystems that include service-user communities.

Presenter:

Gabriel Akindeju

Gabriel Akindeju (CIPT, CGEIT, CRISC, CISM, CISSP, CISA, SCF, M(ISC)2, MISACA.) is a Technology GRC, Security, and Privacy thought leader with extensive senior leadership experience across multiple industries and countries. His primary professional goals are helping organisations:

1. leverage effective management of technology-related risks, including but not limited to security and privacy, for the creation of stakeholder values by optimising risk-reward dynamics;
2. prevent value erosion by deploying an effective risk and operations management framework and processes;

3. safely and securely recover when issues and incidents arise.
